

Corporate Governance Masterclass

27-28
FEBRUARY 2019

Programme Objectives

Governance refers specifically to the set of rules, controls, policies and resolutions put in place to dictate corporate behaviour. Proxy advisors and shareholders are important stakeholders who indirectly affect governance, but these are not examples of governance itself. The board of directors is pivotal in governance, and it can have major ramifications for equity valuation.

Develop your understanding on Procedural Record and Enrich the Knowledge in Comparative Corporate Governance setting

Workshop Overview

Corporate governance is the system of rules, practices and processes by which a company is directed and controlled. Corporate governance essentially involves balancing the interests of a company's many stakeholders, such as shareholders, management, customers, suppliers, financiers, government and the community. Since corporate governance also provides the framework for attaining a company's objectives, it encompasses practically every sphere of management, from action plans and internal controls to performance measurement and corporate disclosure.

Why You Should Attend?

Corporate governance is most often viewed as both the structure and the relationships which determine corporate direction and performance. The board of directors is typically central to corporate governance. Its relationship to the other primary participants, typically shareholders and management, is critical. Additional participants include employees, customers, suppliers, and creditors. The corporate governance framework also depends on the legal, regulatory, institutional and ethical environment of the community. Whereas the 20th century might be viewed as the age of management, the early 21st century is predicted to be more focused on governance. The importance of corporate governance in today's progressive and aggressive business environment cannot be denied. According to the Financial Times, it's "crucial to the achievement of a new frontier of competitive advantage and profitability." In this workshop, participants will have the opportunity to understand the fiduciary duties of directors and officers and also identify the fundamentals of disclosure.

Programme Leader

RICHARD WINFIELD is the Owner and Principal Consultant of Brefi Group Limited since 1981. He set up and established this company to provide strategic analysis and management development to public bodies and companies in the private sector to react to changing and increasingly competitive environments with the focus on development of directors, senior staff and teams. In the early 1980s he gained a Master's degree in management, followed by careers as a management consultant and publishing entrepreneur, combining interests in business and the impact of public policy.

He was closely involved in the privatisation and deregulation of the UK bus industry as co-founder and publisher of the trade newspaper Bus Business, organiser of national conferences, and through submissions to parliamentary select committees.

In the early 1990s his interest in business took him into organisation development through some 20 Investors in People projects, including the first magistrates courts service to gain the award and the first local authority in Wales. It was at this time that he embarked on his study of NeuroLinguistic Programming. Later, he worked inside a £500 million international engineering group laying the foundation for organisation and management development at director and senior manager level, spending some 25% of his time in the USA.

In the new century his career became truly international, with a focus on corporate governance, director development and facilitation, including corporate retreats, executive and team coaching, scenario planning, strategy development and business planning. In 2010 he launched coach training in Asia, Africa and the Middle East. He created 'Invisible Coaching®' and developed the course material for the ASEC Coach Certification Program.

Richard is IT aware, having been involved in applications development for four decades from main frames, through military hardware, micros, PCs and the Internet. He is editor of CorporateCoach.
